QUEEN EMMA

Ready to learn, Ready for life

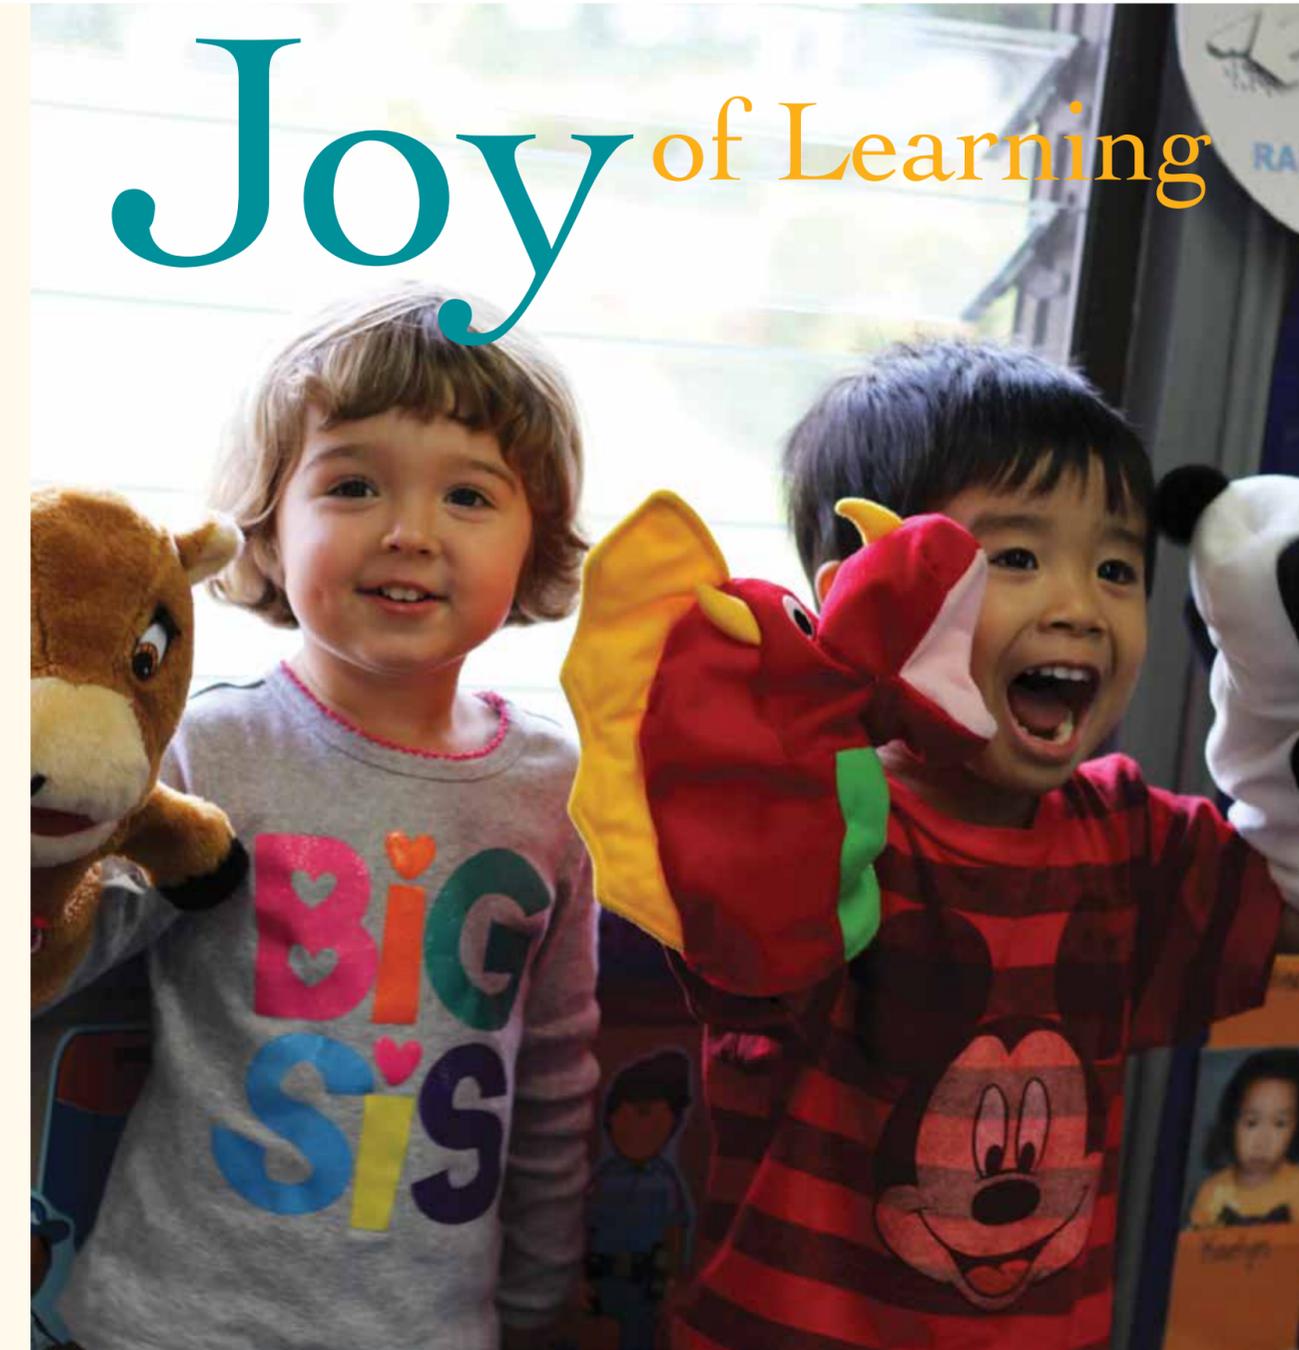

The St. Andrew's way

Named for Queen Emma, wife of King Kamehameha IV, Queen Emma PreSchool is part of the St. Andrew's Schools, which also include St. Andrew's Priory for girls and St. Andrew's Prep for boys. Every child at St. Andrew's benefits from a highly personalized learning experience in small classes with individualized teaching that applies best practices in differentiated learning techniques.

Joy of Learning

“Children learn best through play. Here, their days are filled with joyful, active learning and the wonder of discovery.”

SUSAN OKOGA, DIRECTOR, QUEEN EMMA PRESCHOOL

Start with the child.

At Queen Emma PreSchool, we welcome boys and girls ages 2-6 into a world where their innate curiosity and unique sense of wonder nurture a love of learning through the joys of play. At this age, testing can do little to truly gauge a child’s strengths and talents. And that is why we begin with the child, not the test. We take boys and girls where they are, and we help them grow according to their special gifts.

Play’s the thing

For small children, learning and growing are active and playful. At Queen Emma PreSchool, each day is filled with the richest, most satisfying, and most constructive experiences possible. Throughout our colorful and welcoming school environment, caring, committed teachers who are specialists in early childhood learning help each child explore and grow through developmentally appropriate activities that emphasize play and active learning.

The whole child

Young children want to create and to explore their spiritual side. They want to play and develop physically. They need opportunities that help them develop emotionally and socially. At Queen Emma PreSchool, we help the whole child grow.

Beyond the classroom

Our preschoolers experience rich and varied days. Music instruction, art classes, visits by storytellers, firefighters, and others enrich their lives at school. Field trips introduce them to the cultural and natural wonders of O’ahu and open their eyes to the world around them.

“When I grow up, I want to be a professional dancer... or a teacher at St. Andrew’s Priory.”

Ready to learn

Your child is changing so quickly. At Queen Emma, a developmental approach to learning helps the emerging self grow and expand in a natural, upward moving spiral. Rather than short-term achievement and rote memorization, our program emphasizes the development of the individual learner. Every game we play together, every visitor to the school, every classroom activity is focused on a single, crucial goal: the development of a positive and confident sense of self and the joy of learning.

A great start

Our graduates are accepted into a wide variety of public and private schools, including the most challenging on the island.

Discovering values

Our Episcopal origins find expression in regular chapel services held every other week. During chapel and throughout the day, students learn such important values as respect, sharing, openness to diversity, and honesty.

St. Andrew’s advantage

Girls and boys who want to continue their educations at St. Andrew’s Priory or St. Andrew’s Prep receive priority consideration and may qualify for scholarship support.

Come to play, come to stay

Discover the joy of learning at Queen Emma PreSchool for yourself. Please call the school to plan a visit or tour with your son or daughter. This invitation extends to parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles—to all family and loved ones.
